Great amit. JT thought the 15% point, for esample, is something that BLM would be fine with and that you should write up all insights so we know all ASAP and can jointly decide what parts can be disseminated and how. Let's speak in the am.

Agreed, I have spoken with Jeff Haindl of Amex, our largest client with $500MM invested in Sentry, with some of these insights and have spent considerable time with many others this week, including another 2.5 hrs with HSBC who were comforted by our deep knowledge of BLM. We need to sift through the notes from the BLM meeting to identify which parts we (and BLM) are comfortable making widely available, and which parts are for internal use only. Per Jeffrey's suggestion, we can then begin contacting our key clients (aiming to start on Tue).

Would be great Amit, as Jeffrey thinks we should be calling top holders with key insights like 15% insurance on puts and fielded a call himself on Friday from Gil Dolan of Grosvenor which made Gil feel much better.

Charles - its clearly been a very demanding week for us all with many of us working until 2am every night. As I said to you on Friday, first draft is done, and I've promised JT and MM a review before finalizing. Will revert asap.

Regards,
Amit

Amit: as discussed on Friday, it has now been ten days since the meeting. Assume you are responsible for the first draft (rather than Mark?) Which the four of us (now at dinner) agree is long overdue. We have all worked the whole weekend on firm issues. Hope we can see the memo asap tomorrow (or even the draft of as far as you have gotten, if still researching technical points). Charles
